

FIELD ART ACADEMY'S

PHOTOGRAPHIC IMAGES AND SOCIAL MEDIA POLICY

Policy Background

Photographic images, audio and/or video recordings (the "Released Media") of players involved in Field Art Academy's practices, games, tournaments, camps and other events and activities may be captured by still and/or video cameras. Some of this Released Media may be published from time to time by Field Art Academy in various media, including, but not limited to, advertisements, brochures, newsletters, newspapers, magazines, slide shows, television programs, live streaming, websites and on social media, including Facebook, Twitter and similar services. The Release Media of players may also be displayed at Field Art Academy's events or at events to which Field Art Academy has been invited.

The Released Media published may include players' identifying information. Field Art Academy is committed to ensuring that its use of player's personal information, including the publishing of photographs and recordings, is always respectful of the player, and in accordance with all legal obligations, including British Columbia Personal Information Protection Act (PIPA).

Policy Statement

Field Art Academy will not reproduce, use, exhibit, display, publish, broadcast, distribute, and create derivative works of the Released Media of the player, taken for use in connection with the activities of Field Art Academy or for promoting, publicizing, or explaining Field Art Academy, or its programs and activities, on any media which is widely-accessible, such as the internet and including social media, or which is distributed outside the Field Art Academy community, without prior parental consent.

Parents can provide consent using the forms at the end of Field Art Academy's Photographic Images and Social Media policy. The consent given by the parents using these forms shall be in effect for all the time during which the player is a member of Field Art Academy. Field Art Academy shall be entitled to continue using the Released Media as provided herein, even after a player ceases to be a member of Field Art Academy, unless the parents of such player expressly withdraw their previously granted consent with respect to the use of such Released Media.

Field Art Academy will assume parental consent for the use or publishing of player's personal information, including the Released Media, for internal purposes or which are published and distributed or accessible only to members of the Field Art Academy community, unless and until expressly advised otherwise.

Consent Forms

Please indicate below your preferences:

Option 1: Yes, I have read Field Art Academy's Photographic Images and Social Media policy and consent to the use, publication and display of the Released Media involving my child as described, or for similar purposes, outside of the Field Art Academy community. I acknowledge there will be no money or other compensation payable by Field Art Academy to me for the Released Media. The copyright in the Released Media is and will remain the exclusive property of Field Art Academy. I agree that Field Art Academy is granted free of charge and forever the right to edit and modify the Released Media as it sees fit without my/my child's consent. I understand that this consent form is legally binding and so affects my child's/my legal rights on the basis set out above.
